

İntrotema

COPYRIGHT AND TRANSLATION AGENCY

"We swear to the Almighty that we will never be slaves!"

This book contains various speeches made by Aliya Izetbegovic at different times and places, revealing the devastation caused by the Bosnian war in his own words. We find Izetbegovic addressing the Bosnian people at a campaign rally on some occasions and speaking to bureaucrats in an international commission on others. Throughout all these speeches, Alija stands as a true leader.

By saying, "When this storm subsides one day, we will have to return to ourselves," he prevents his people from solely focusing on war and makes efforts as a leader to strengthen people's relationship with life, art, and literature.

Speeches Anthology
300 pages
Turkish and Bosnian

Even in an increasingly intense war environment, Alija insists on peace, proclaiming that standing up for Bosnia is a moral duty for everyone. In essence, Alija expects a principled stance from the entire world during his speeches...

Are you interested? Contact us for a detailed review:

emreca.petek@introtema.com

This mail was sent by Introtema Copyright and Translation Agency.